SPEAKER'S REMARKS

Mr. Speaker: "Welcome back to session!

Let's start by recognizing the new Republican leader, Richard DeBolt. And welcome back the Majority Leader, Lynn Kessler. I'd like to introduce my wife, Nancy, and my daughter, Ellie.

I'd also like to recognize some special guests in the gallery -- leaders in the ethnic media who play such a crucial role in our democracy. It's wonderful to have you here!

We had great session together last year. It was the most productive in decades. We focused on the kitchen-table issues of education, health care, and jobs.

Since the session finished on time, I had the opportunity to travel across our state. I saw evidence of the good we did, but also the next steps we need to take. By the way, I wasn't the only one traveling the state. I want to thank Rep. Eileen Cody, and the members of the Health Care committee for doing their rural health tour last summer.

We must take every opportunity to bring the people of Washington together. When I visited Ellensburg, I was hosted by Rep. Jane'a Holmquist and the local Farm Bureau. Folks there expressed appreciation for our agenda passed last session.

But they also offered ideas for the future:

Immediate help, remove the sales tax from on-farm diesel

Long-term step -- Bio fuels -- Which is a tremendous opportunity for a win-win for One Washington.

At the end of my visit, one of the farmers, who is also a member of the local school board, said thanks for listening to us on the farm issues!

And then he said, "Oh, by the way, thanks for funding Initiative 728, to help lower class sizes! Now, what we really need next is help to fund full-day kindergarten."

This session, we can move ahead on early learning! But this House will also take some steps to help farmers:

We'll take the sales tax off farm diesel.

And we will create an Energy Independence fund, a step towards reducing our addiction to foreign oil.

Let's send our money to Eastern Washington, not the Middle East!

When I visited Spokane, I was accompanied by Rep. Timm Ormsby. He took me to the local Union Hall for the construction trades. If you want to get a look at the real builders of our state, visit that hall. They showed a lot of appreciation for the investments we made in school construction and transportation.

We made historic investments in those two areas in 2005!

This session, we have a huge responsibility, not just to make sure that performance audits are done—which this House paved the way for, but to make sure every construction dollar is well-spent.

In Walla Walla, I was hosted by Rep. Bill Grant and Rep. Maureen Walsh. By the way, Maureen, please tell your husband how much I loved the sweet onion sausages he makes. Wow! I apologize to my wife for mentioning that ---she was a vegetarian before she met me. But I figured, hey they say this is a sausage factory, so, ...

While I was in Walla Walla, I attended the Community College Foundation fund-raising dinner. People there thanked us for adding more enrollments in higher ed. They thanked us for investing in Walla Walla CC. We enabled students from our state to learn the wine industry in our state. To help make the best wine in the world!

This session, we must look for more opportunities to see how careful investments in education can leverage jobs for our people.

I visited the small town near Yakima with Rep. Phyllis Kenney and Senator Patty Murray, two tremendous leaders on may issues, including farm worker housing. We took a tour of Buena Nueva Homes -- 52 units of new, decent housing sponsored by the Yakima Catholic diocese. Families living there expressed great appreciation for our investment in low-income housing. One woman told of how she and her family used to live in a chicken coop. Now, thanks to the Farmer Worker Housing Trust, they have a decent home. They were also pleased that we've started down the road to assuring that all kids have health care by 2010. Because of this legislature, over 70,000 formerly uninsured kids across the state will now have a medical home. To put that in perspective, that's more than enough kids to fill Qwest Field, where the Seahawks will win and go on to the Super Bowl!

This session, we can afford to advance our effort for kids' care because of the hot real estate market that has generated additional resources for our state. About 50% of the new revenue is a result of the housing market and construction boom. So it also makes sense to invest a small amount of that in a Home Security Fund, to help those who have been left behind in the housing market: the disabled, seniors, victims of domestic violence, the working poor. They deserve the security of a home.

Along the same lines, this session we will use the money from a legal settlement with the Qwest company to help low-income people with their heating bills.

When I visited Omak, I was asked to give a commencement address at the branch campus of the Wenatchee Community College. The auditorium was packed. There was a large graduating class of nurses, the second-generation, in several cases. I wish you could have seen their pride and joy! It was inspiring!

This session, we need to help students in high school and community colleges, to acquire the skills to succeed, and to earn the pride of their parents.

Overall, this session must not be about posturing for attention; it must be about passing legislation for the next generation. We will take care of our people, and we must be wise in the care of their money. At the end of this session, we will have the vast bulk of the new revenue held in reserve. Over the past several years, we have cut billions out of our state budget, but we must continue to look for ways to do things more efficiently and in the right priority.

Washington state is one of the best places on earth, where hope and opportunity, innovation and creativity, freedom and community can flourish. As legislators, let's keep in mind the people of our state who share a fundamental value: the notion of including every one of our people in a better future:

Every child being healthy and ready to learn and protected from abuse.

Every student learning the skills for a productive life.

Every worker making ends meet for their family and their future.

Every farmer finding success in the global marketplace.

Every enterprise working to create good jobs and the common wealth.

Every individual living free from discrimination.

Every senior having quality care and security when they will need it --- and we will all need it, some day.

Every person with a disability being supported to reach their potential

Every person in poverty earning their way up and out of poverty

And, every citizen seeing their tax dollars well spent and audited, and their public servants serving the public interest.

In this short legislative session, we'll make some more progress. But let's get it done on time. Let's bring people together to address the challenges that confront us.

Let's work together for one Washington."
